

Finalists announced for MEDEA Awards 2019

The organisers of the annual MEDEA Awards are delighted to announce the 6 finalists for the 2019 Annual MEDEA Awards in the user-generated and professionally-produced categories.

The finalists (in alphabetical order) are:

- Couleur, Arts, Industrie by Mines Paristech (France)
- DynamicAnatomy, an Augmented Reality application for embodied learning by Leiden University Medical Center (The Netherlands)
- MOOC Le solfège à votre portée by Université de Montréal & Marie-Victorin College (Canada)
- The History of Life Film Project by National University of Ireland Galway (Ireland)
- The Royal Sites as a professional resource by Universidad Rey Juan Carlos (Spain)
- Transport Systems: Global issues and future innovations by University of Leeds (UK)

Each finalist will be represented at the annual Media & Learning Conference taking place this year in Leuven, Belgium on 5-6 June when the winners in both categories will be announced during the MEDEA Awards Ceremony taking place in Leuven Town Hall on 5 June 2019.

Entries this year came from all over Europe as well as the Mexico, US, Canada, Morocco, Iran and Australia and highlighted the many different ways in which video is increasingly used for teaching and learning purposes in a host of different contexts from skills and knowledge acquisition to helping students explore new environments and opportunities for learning.
